

Appeals futile

THE legal advice many people received was not to appeal, because the planning rules applying to Kangaroo Bay are loose and lax so that any sort of development can be made to comply. Taking on an $8 billion foreign company is a huge risk as costs would most likely be awarded against us. This is the real reason council had no appeals against the development in Kangaroo Bay. The Mayor has neglected to point out that council has committed $7.8 million dollars to the next stage of this development. The question was asked to the Mayor what, where and how this taxpayer or private money is being spent on, of course no reply as yet. This is a private development with Crown Land being transferred to a foreign company to own. Private greed, political influence again.
